	Austria	Yes	1. Before answering the questions Austria wants to point out in the beginning, that there is no legal right to receive post arrival assistance. Further, that benefits can only be received once and are subject to approval. It does not matter if the returnee returns within or after the deadline for return. Austria supports 3 reintegration programs. ERIN (European Reintegration Network; partner countries: Afghanistan, Iraq, Iran, Pakistan, Russia, Nigeria, Morocco, Somaliland; 350 cases p.a.) and the two bilateral projects RESTART II (IOM; Afghanistan, Iran; Jan. 2017 – Dec. 2019; 490 reintegration cases) and IRMA plus (Caritas; vulnerable cases in about 50 countries of origin; Jan. 2017 – Dec. 2019; 150 reintegration cases). It does not matter if the returnee returns within or after the deadline for return. Post arrival support in kind: ERIN EUR 3.000.- (Russia EUR 3.500.-), RESTART II EUR 2.800.- (for example: education and trainings, support for starting or joining a business, accommodation) IRMA plus EUR 3.000.- (for example: basic needs like housing, medical and psychological care, business assistance, job training). 	Belgium	Yes	1. Please note: • Foreigners from EU countries, from countries with visa exemption (for example Albania, Serbia and Brazil) or from Kosovo do in principle not receive in-cash or in-kind support. They can only receive a ticket to travel back to their country of origin. However if foreigners of these countries are vulnerable (pregnant women, elderly person, medical problems) they might receive € 500,- per person of in-kind support. In case of a family with underage children it's possible (not certain) they will receive € 500,- per case of in-kind support. In case of an exceptional situation (e.g. situation in country of origin, person who has left his country of origin a long time ago), foreigners from these countries might (not certain) get € 1.000,- per case of in-kind support. So the answers provided below do not apply for foreigners from EU countries, from countries with visa exemption or from Kosovo. • In collaboration with IOM and Caritas International Belgium a project has been started in June 2016. The project includes counselling to people who voluntarily return to countries in the Western Balkans (Albania, Serbia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, FYRO Macedonia, Montenegro and Kosovo). After return, the local IOM or Caritas International Belgium office provides assistance in dealing with administrative obligations. Unlike in the case of the regular voluntary return program, returnees in the above-mentioned project do not directly receive in cash / in kind support for housing, establishing micro-initiatives, ... Instead people who voluntarily return to the Western Balkans are given a specific guidance and referral to get access to already existing social services in their country of origin. • Sometimes support is temporarily increased for certain countries of origin (for example Central Iraq in 2016). € 250,- per person.

2. € 700,- per person + € 1.500 per case. The € 1.500 per case is only for asylum seekers whose asylum applications were taken into consideration (so for example no Dublin cases or no humanitarian regularisation).

3. € 250,- per person

4. If the person has ever started a residence procedure (asylum, family reunification, stay for medical reasons, ...): € 700,- per person. If the person has never started a residence procedure: nothing, except if he is vulnerable (please see question 9).

5. € 125,- per child

6. € 125,- per child

7. If a residence procedure was started: € 350,- per child. If no residence procedure was started, the family does not receive in-kind support for adults or for children. (except in case of vulnerability, every family with underage children is considered vulnerable and might receive € 500,- per case, please see question 9)

8. If a residence procedure was started: € 350,- per child. If no residence procedure was started, the family does not receive in-kind support for adults or for children. (except in case of vulnerability, every family with underage children is considered vulnerable and might receive € 500,- per case, please see question 9)

9. Vulnerable person will not receive additional in-cash support. Additional in-kind support: - Families with underage children: + € 500,- per case - Vulnerable category (pregnant women, elderly person or medical problems): + € 500,- per vulnerable person - Person is not an asylum seeker (so not entitled to € 1.500,- of reintegration support per case) and if there is an exceptional situation (e.g. specific situation in country of origin or person who has left his country of origin a long time ago), then it's possible (not certain) he will get up to € 1.000,- per case.

10. € 250,- per person (the same amount as an individual who is not in the Dublin procedure)

11. € 125,- per child (€ 250,- for an unaccompanied minor)

12. € 250,- per person (the same amount as an individual who doesn't have a valid travel document upon applying).

13. No. In general forced returnees never receive in-cash support and never in-kind support. Exceptions are possible: on a case by case evaluation can be decided to grant support by the Belgian Immigration Office. Also for vulnerable persons 'special needs' in case of forced return can be interpreted as reintegration support (this can be material support on the spot - but only in function of the person's pathology and usually involves medical, psychological or psychiatric care, medication, hospitalization). For example this support can be used for housing - e.g. accommodation for a wheelchair user.
